PROBES BROKEN SHORT OFF

Ohio Supreme Court Knocks Out Committees—Other Opinions Handed Down.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—The supreme court has knocked out the Cincinnati Gayman probe committee appointed by the last legislature. The judgment of the circuit court of Hamilton county in the case brought by the prosecutor of Hamilton county against Senator Gayman, chairman, and the other members of the legislature to enforce the investigation was affirmed.

The legislature appointed a committee to probe Cleveland and this committee also falls by the decision. Price, Shauck, Crew and Summers concur; Chief Justice Price and Crew concur on the sole ground that the committee appointed under the joint resolution had no power to act after the final adjournment of the legislature, which could not reconvene of its own motion. The probe committees were appointed by the last legislature to investigate the municipal affairs of Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Democrats insisted on probing Cincinnati and the Republicans retaliated by securing a probe committee for Cleveland. The Cleveland probe committee has done nothing but has been awaiting the supreme court's decision.

The supreme court winked its eye at an alleged flaw in an indictment whereby Earl Ritchie was sent to the penitentiary from Stark county. Ritchie was sent up for "robbing at" a man with intent to kill or wound. As it happens, Ritchie not only shot "at" the man, but he shot him, and he held that as the two were entirely different propositions, the indictment under which he was convicted was faulty, on a strict interpretation of the criminal law. But the court holds otherwise and Ritchie has to stay in the penitentiary.

In the suit of F. M. Marriott, receiver for the Columbus, Sandusky & Hooking railroad, against T. M. Live, say, the Nells and E. E. Shedd, in an effort to enforce the double liability law, the court held that there was a defect in the summons in error and it was quashed. There are 30 or 40 similar suits pending against the former stockholders.

Speaking in the house of lords, President of the Board of Agriculture Harrington acknowledged the seal with which the American authorities were coping with the disease.

The Lament of the Foolish Hen

HE times are good—they are I never saw, there comes Aunt Jane To toss out our meal of grain.

A few months back I was so thin, But now I have a double chin. And feel as though I was tight laced When I put on my corset waist.

Aunt Jane comes out at early morn With her blue apron full of corn, And with a friendly, chuckling sound She throws it on the frosty ground. The crows are gathered in the days Are soft with Indian summer haze, And Jack, the chore boy, feeds the stock While chips fly at the chopping block.

The city may have its delights, But these delightful days and nights Upon the farm are full for me Of the serene and happy life. Since back there in September they Have added to our fare each day Until, to fullness thus inspired, There's nothing left to be desired.

A word about Aunt Jane, that serves To pay the tribute she deserves: Since first I broke my shell to see The world she has been good to me. When foolishly in youth I strayed In the wet grass, she often stayed Long after dark to bring me in And dry my wet, goose-pimpled skin.

I always had a roosting place Secure from danger by the grace Of her, and many days and nights She treated me for parasites. Her care of me, somehow, has stirred The thought I am no common bird. And some day I will take, I know, A ribbon at a poultry show.

When I go strutting o'er the yard Aunt Jane peers through her glasses hard Or her, and many days and nights The admiration in her eye. And Jack, the choreboy, when he slips From barn to pump, will smack his lips To see me wax so fat—he knows How Aunt Jane loves me, I suppose.

Old Gobbler there, so lank and lean, Is full of jealous musings mean. He barely eats and is so thin His bones are sticking through his skin.

"I Do Not Care to Talk with Him." He tried to whisper something once To me, the scrawny, half-starved dunce, But I passed on with figure trim, I do not care to talk with him.

Aunt Jane one morning cooped us in The yard, the stout ones and the thin, We are so tame, and she has made Us love her so we're not afraid. And then she caught us, one by one, And setted us, and we "was done, She felt my body, my plump side, Till I could scarce contain my pride.

Old Gobbler sat neglected quite, And he passed him by nor did stop To stroke his side or feel his crop. Again he sought to speak with me, Again I scorned him, haughtily, And he brushed something from his eye A tear, I think, as I passed by.

Last night I had a horrid dream, I thought I heard old Gobbler scream: "Don't eat! Don't eat!" until the words Waked me and all the other birds. Old Gobbler sat there like a sphinx And watched me as a hungry lynx. It must have been a dream, and then I closed my eyes in sleep again.

"The morning now, here comes Aunt Jane, Her apron full of corn again; But what grim person that with her So like an executioner? He bears a glittering ax and bright, In truth, a most revolting sight. But passes by—Ah, me, the fright Near took away my appetite.

Now stoops Aunt Jane to bid me beg For corn. She grabs me by the leg! "Ho, Jack!" she cries. "Come, hurry! run!" I've got the very fattest one! He comes across the yard and takes Me to the chopping block and shakes His gleaming ax—Old Gobbler, near, Goes "kyouck!" and wipes another tear.

How cold and treacherous is fate! I see it all, but 'tis too late. Old Gobbler's whisper was to warn Me of the fate of too much corn. He loved me! Hear his mournful "kyouck!"

I close my eyes upon the block. Forgive me, Gobbler! Stayed I thin I had escaped this guillotine.—J. W. Foley, in Philadelphia Ledger.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Canfield women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, itchy, painful, headaches, dizzy spells, drowsiness, urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Canfield woman's words:

Mrs. M. A. Hine, W. Main street, Canfield, Ohio, says: "I suffered more or less for years from kidney trouble. At times, my back would be so lame and painful I could hardly get out of bed. If I sat down in a chair, I could not arise without considerable effort and pain. Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended to me and I procured a box at Morris' drug store. Before I had finished the contents, my condition was greatly improved and when I had used two boxes, I was entirely free from the trouble. I have not had a pain or ache since and the kidneys are acting in a perfectly normal manner. I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS
The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

It is the opinion of the court that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is actually adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever known.

It is the opinion of the court that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition and that in the future as the dictionary it will be the source of constant reference.
